Most games only support IPX networks and modem/direct serial link play; TCP/IP networks are not natively supported. With the right software, however, most games designed to be played over IPX LANs can be fooled into operating over the Internet. Kali uses the UDP protocol to send game information between multiple machines on the Internet. Kali has been used to play Descent, Doom, Doom II, Heretic, Hexen, Command & Conquer, Apache, Rise of the Triad, Terminal Velocity, Warcraft, VR Pool, Super Karts, Mortal Combat 3, and other games over the Internet with opponents from all over the world (not all games will be fast enough from modem connections).
